You'll be part of a university that's made up of inspirational, challenging thinkers and doers – and continue doing work that makes a lasting impact. Discover more at www.monash.edu.

Monash Arts is one of the largest, most diverse and dynamic arts faculties in Australia, with particular strengths in the humanities, performing arts, languages and social sciences. We encourage the development of innovative studies that operate at the intersection of traditional academic disciplines. The Faculty delivers programs via seven schools and across six campuses, both in Australia and offshore, with courses ranging from undergraduate diplomas and degrees through to postgraduate coursework and research degrees. Monash Arts is justly proud of the research capacity of its staff, who work at the cutting edge in their fields and carry this expertise and enthusiasm into their teaching. To learn more about Monash Arts, please visit our website:

The position is located within the School of Languages, Literatures, Cultures and Linguistics, one of the largest Schools in the Faculty of Arts. Members of the School conduct research in the disciplines of European and Asian languages, literary and cultural studies, linguistics and applied linguistics, history and the social sciences, as well as translation and intercultural studies. The School's Programs offer studies at undergraduate, honours and postgraduate levels. We offer a broad and diverse language and culture curriculum at undergraduate and postgraduate level as well as unique opportunities to study abroad, including a range of offerings at the Monash University Prato Centre.

European Languages and Cultures at Monash is a vibrant, research-driven community of undergraduates, postgraduates and academic staff with a reputation for innovative research and teaching. It brings together colleagues and students from across the European languages and their associated cultures to explore transnational and comparative approaches to the study of French, German, Italian and Spanish within a global cultural context. We aim to foster a deep understanding of the interconnections between different languages and cultures and their global impact over time. Italian is among the largest of the language specialisations within the European Languages major, with students at all levels from ab initio to CEFR C1+. Staff currently teaching into Italian Studies bring a broad range of disciplinary expertise to their teaching and research, including literary, film and performance studies, language pedagogy and intercultural communication.

Through the establishment of a European based research entity - the Monash University European Research Foundation (MUERF), which will complement the activities of the Monash University Prato Centre - Monash is focused on facilitating the acceleration of our in-country research (including participating in European and national funding schemes) and industry engagement in Europe. This development provides an exciting opportunity for the incumbent of this role to play an active part in the development of the foundation and to contribute to its early successes.

POSITION PURPOSE

We are seeking to appoint an Associate Professor in Italian Studies (Level D) with demonstrated expertise in any area of contemporary Italian culture. A Level D academic is expected to make a significant contribution to all activities of the organisational unit or interdisciplinary area and play a significant role within their profession or discipline.
