MESSAGE FROM DEAN AND HEAD OF SCHOOL

Thank you for your interest in joining The University of Queensland (UQ) Business School at this pivotal moment in our future, and yours.

The University of Queensland is one of Australia’s Group of Eight (Go8), a top 50 university globally, and the state’s largest and oldest university. UQ Business School is revered as one of the world’s leading research and teaching institutions, proudly offering the number one MBA program in Australia and the Asia-Pacific for six consecutive years (The Economist 2017 MBA Ranking).

After several exceedingly strong years of growth for the Business School, the University has launched an exciting academic recruitment plan to expand our unrivalled team of world-class staff at all levels. We currently have 10,000 passionate students enrolled in our undergraduate, postgraduate and research degrees and our growing MOOCs and MicroMasters reach more than 50,000 participants located in 193 countries.

We are motivated, collaborative and focused on driving global change - and as a result, are looking to grow our talent by recruiting an additional 40 academic staff in the areas of finance, management, business information systems, tourism, marketing, accounting, strategy and entrepreneurship.

So, what are we looking for exactly? We are seeking academic staff whose career aspirations match the following criteria; motivation to lead an engaging education experience for our students and executive education clients; a record of published research in leading journals; and a desire to engage with industry and contribute to the community within the Business School.

We also encourage applications from individuals or from teams, who may wish to continue their valuable research or operational relationships within a new organisation.

For those seeking a stimulating and rewarding academic career while making a real difference in students’ education, we welcome your application.

Professor Julie Cogin
Dean and Head of School
UQ Business School

1 A coalition of leading Australian universities, intensive in research and comprehensive in general and professional education.
The University of Queensland (UQ), located in Brisbane, Australia, ranks consistently among the world’s top universities and delivers unparalleled teaching, learning, and research excellence.

The University is a global leader in finding solutions to society’s problems. It has a strong and internationally focused research culture and an enviable track record in research translation and commercialisation. It is also nationally recognised for its leadership in teaching and learning, having won more Australian Awards for University Teaching than any other university.

UQ ranks in the world’s top universities, as measured by several key independent rankings, including the Performance Ranking of Scientific Papers for World Universities (41), QS World University Rankings (47), the US News Best Global Universities Rankings (45), Academic Ranking of World Universities (55), and the Times Higher Education World University Rankings (65). Excluding the award component, UQ is now ranked 45th in the world in the Academic Rankings of World Universities (excluding award factor), and is one of only two Australian universities to be included in the global top 50.

The third Excellence in Research for Australia (ERA) assessment, conducted in 2015, reaffirmed the exceptional quality of research at UQ, with 100 per cent of UQ’s research – evaluated across all 22 broad fields of research and 97 specialised fields of research – rated as being at world standard or above. Ninety-five per cent of UQ’s broad fields of research were rated above or well above world standard, with 55 per cent receiving the highest rating – well above world standard. UQ submitted in all broad fields, confirming it as one of Australia’s most comprehensive universities.

UQ is one of only three Australian members of the global Universitas 21; a founding member of the national Group of Eight (Go8) universities; a member of Universities Australia; and one of only two Australian charter members of the prestigious edX consortium, the world’s leading not-for-profit consortium of massive open online courses (MOOCs).

UQ is committed to providing students with the best opportunities and practical experiences while at university – including interactions with researchers, industry and international partners – empowering them with transferable knowledge and skills that will prepare them to exceed expectations throughout their careers.

More than 52,000 students, including the majority of Queensland’s highest academic achievers, as well as top interstate and overseas students, study across UQ’s three beautiful campuses in South-East Queensland at St Lucia, Herston, and Gatton. They include more than 16,400 postgraduate and about 15,400 international students who contribute to a diverse, supportive and inclusive campus community.

UQ has around 250,000 graduates – including 13,000 PhDs – in more than 140 nations. UQ’s graduate employability statistics are impressive. According to the latest Graduate Careers Australia’s Australian Graduate Survey (2017), 73.5 per cent of UQ Australian bachelor’s degree graduates available for full-time work had secured full-time employment within four months of completing courses, comparing favourably to the national average of 68.8 per cent.

UQ employs more than 6,600, academic and professional staff and has a $1.7 billion annual operating budget.
GOVERNANCE

The University is governed by a 22-member Senate representing University and community interests and is led by a Chancellor and Deputy Chancellor. The Senate has delegated to the Vice-Chancellor many of its powers under the University of Queensland Act 1998 to appoint staff, manage and control University affairs and property, and manage and control finances.

STRATEGIC DIRECTION

Delivering on the vision of ‘knowledge leadership for a better world’ is an ambitious goal in any context, but in an environment of funding uncertainty, rapid change and digital disruption, the challenge becomes amplified. Disruptive technologies are the new norm, introducing new competitors within higher education and broadening access to information on a global scale. These changes are fundamentally impacting the way universities teach, the way they conduct research, and the way new knowledge is shared with the world.

Traditional sources of funding are also in decline, forcing universities to look beyond government for financial support. Opportunities exist to build research funding from industry or international sources and the Australian higher education system continues to attract large numbers of international students. This provides important additional revenue for the sector, but it is also necessary to mitigate against the risks of becoming too dependent on foreign markets.

The University of Queensland’s Strategic Plan 2018-2021 has been developed with these issues and risks firmly in mind. To meet this uncertainty, it is vital that UQ establishes an agile and flexible foundation – uniting a diverse community to anticipate change and confidently adapt to whatever challenges this brings.

The University must enable high impact outcomes that not only provide true knowledge leadership, but inspire others to partner with us to pursue this endeavour.

Strategic focus areas

UQ must make some fundamental adjustments to our operations. It is these changes, articulated through the six strategic focus areas listed below, that form the body of this Strategic Plan.

1. Transforming our student experience through a flexible, integrated and partnered learning environment.
2. Enhancing our high quality research by improving our capacity to collaborate to achieve greater impact.
3. Building engaged and strategic partnerships with a broad range of local and global networks.
4. Committing to activities that attract, support and retain a diverse and inclusive community of high achieving staff and students.
5. Building an agile, responsive and efficient university operation.
6. Diversifying our income streams and managing our resources to establish a sustainable financial base.
The School has eight main areas of academic strength represented by disciplines:

- Accounting
- Business Information Systems
- Finance
- International Business
- Management
- Marketing
- Strategy and Entrepreneurship
- Tourism

UQ Business School’s mission is to cultivate courageous thinkers who empower future leaders to positively transform business and society. The School carries AACSB International and EQUIS accreditation – the first school in Australia to receive this accreditation across the full range of programs. The School enjoys strong research links with leading international research schools.

The University of Queensland Business School is independently ranked as one of the top business schools in Australia and among the leading institutions worldwide. Based in Brisbane, it brings together over 130 subject experts with over 8,000 students and offers a wide range of degree programs and Executive Education.

The Tourism Discipline at UQ Business School has a long tradition of excellence, with its history going back to 1972. Our under- and postgraduate programs provide broad disciplinary foundations followed by majors in hospitality, tourism and event management.

Our enrolments are strong and we have extensive relationships with industry. We are the top rated tourism research institution in Australia (ERA 5) and in the Top 5 in most global rankings. We are a collegial, high-performing group who are looking for equally collegial and high-performing colleagues to join us.

UQ is a world Top 100 university and situated on a beautiful campus in sunny Brisbane Australia. This is a rare opportunity to join a vibrant group at the forefront of tourism research, teaching, and practice and we enthusiastically invite applications.
