Why join our team?

At Questacon, we strive to promote greater understanding and awareness of science and technology within the community. We're committed to making that experience fun, interactive, and relevant. Our objective is to raise science awareness through a range of engaging and educational science and technology experiences. We achieve this by delivering a vibrant centre, with well targeted exhibitions, science shows, programs and activities, underpinned by excellent customer service.

The Learning Programs team delivers a suite of targeted programs that provide science engagement experiences for diverse audiences— incorporating early childhood, primary and secondary school students, families, and adults—through facilitated experiences, theatrical performances, and structured workshops.

What we're looking for

Individuals who;

- have demonstrated experience delivering facilitated activities, theatrical performances, and structured workshops—or other related methods of program delivery—to a variety of audiences;
- are enthusiastic and have the ability to proactively work as an individual and collaboratively as a member of a team;
- can work positively and productively in a changing work environment, across different programs with distinct delivery styles, and under pressure;
- have the availability to undertake regular shift work, with hours varying between 8.30am and 9.00pm over a 7-day roster.

The impact you'll have

- High quality delivery of a number of programs for a variety of audiences; engaging them with science, technology, and encouraging the development of 21st century skills (some programs require physical activity and good coordination such as pulling, lifting, bending, manipulation of objects. Some program areas require access via stairs and continuous movement).
- Assisting with the development, testing and evaluation of new content, activities and delivery methods
- Assisting in the mentoring and support of fellow Learning Programs Presenters through peer training, role modelling, and being an exemplar of program delivery
- Providing open communication to all team members, including giving and receiving feedback and effectively contributing as part of a team
- Maintaining the ongoing safety of programs by adhering to policies and procedures and undertaking regular in-house training to ensure high quality delivery
- Carrying out other activities as required in support of Questacon's programs
- Working within Australian Government guidelines (e.g. Workplace Health and Safety, APS Values and Code of Conduct).
