Interested in becoming a member on a state, territory and regional health profession board?

What you need to know about making a contribution to the health and safety of the Australian public as part of a regulatory board for health professions.

March 2021

Message from the CEO

Thank you for taking the time to consider contributing to the National Registration and Accreditation Scheme (the National Scheme) as a state, territory or regional board member.

Regulating the health professions in Australia is a large and important task. State, territory and regional board members play a key role in the regulation of registered health practitioners.

Ahpra works in partnership with the National Boards to manage the registration and notifications about health practitioners and students across Australia. Ahpra has a national office based in Melbourne and offices in every state and territory to support boards and committees.

Of the 15 National Boards that regulate health professions in the National Scheme, three have state, territory and regional boards:

- Nursing and Midwifery Board of Australia
- Medical Board of Australia
- Psychology Board of Australia

These three National Boards regulate 78% of all registered health practitioners across Australia – and therefore make up a significant portion of the regulatory activity undertaken across the National Scheme.

To undertake this important regulatory role, board members are sought with skills and experience that will support informed regulatory decision making.

If you want to contribute to protecting the public via practitioner regulation and are seeking a rewarding and challenging opportunity to contribute your skills and experience, I encourage you to apply for the practitioner or community member vacancies currently being advertised across Australia.

We strongly support Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Peoples applying for these roles.

Thanks again for considering an application. Please contact our statutory appointments team with any questions you might have about the application and selection process.

Meet our state, territory and regional board members

Board members share their wisdom and experience on what it is like to participate in a regulatory board as part of the National Scheme.

Mrs Eithne Irving

Mrs Irving is a registered nurse and a practitioner member and Chair of the New South Wales (NSW) Board of the Nursing and Midwifery Board of Australia.

'It is important for board members not to have fixed views or professional bias, especially given that we are considering matters related to two different professions. Decision-making requires impartiality and objectivity.'

What do you consider to be important attributes to successfully contribute to a health profession board as a practitioner member?

First, a good understanding of contemporary practice and the education and training of nurses and midwives, especially when considering the registration of international graduates.

Second, at least a minimal understanding of how the National Law operates. It is not a punitive system, but rather a right touch regulatory model that still ensures the protection of the public. It is important to keep that front of mind when considering a matter. From the perspective of personal attributes, it is important for board members not to have fixed views or professional bias, especially given that we are considering matters related to two different professions. Decision-making requires impartiality and objectivity.

Finally, attention to detail and diligence in preparing for meetings are essential skills. There can be a large amount of material to read and not being well prepared will limit your capacity to be an active participant.

What are some of the current challenges facing the board in regulating individual nurses and midwives?

Applying the right touch to regulation is challenging, and the National Board has developed clear standards and guidelines that we use to guide our decision-making. NSW is a co-regulatory state which means that the NSW Board only deals with matters related to the registration of nurses and midwives. The NSW Board does not investigate notifications matters and must refer these cases to the NSW Nursing and Midwifery Council.

What are some of the main activities you carry out in your role as Chair?

The Chair is a conduit between the National Board and the NSW Board to ensure that we are taking a consistent approach in the implementation of the national standards when we consider registration issues. During a meeting, my role is to ensure the board has the right information so that we make informed decisions on matters. Everyone should have the opportunity to speak, and discussions must be respectful and constructive. Decisions must be summarised correctly so they can be carried out by Ahpra.

Dr Fiona Black

Dr Black is a clinical psychologist and Chair of the Queensland (Qld) Board of the Psychology Board of Australia.

'Being part of the board has given me a genuine sense of confidence in the regulation of a profession that I care deeply about. Seeing my colleagues treat each matter with compassion, fairness, and respect has given me faith in the board's processes.'

What are some of the current challenges facing the board in regulating individual psychologists?

One of the biggest challenges is striving for consistency in the application of professional standards in practice. I think this challenge arises primarily out of the numerous training pathways that have evolved in psychology in Australia. Though each pathway has its own merits, the National Board has recognised the need to streamline these training pathways, as well as bringing them more in line with international trends. I think we will see the benefits of this unfolding in many ways over the years to come.

How do you balance your board and committee workload with your professional responsibilities?

During my time on the board, my 'day jobs' have been in public health. My employers have been very supportive of my commitment to the board and have helped me work out the best arrangements. Though the extra workload is significant, it feels complementary to my regular work, and the shift in thinking required is refreshing. The monthly meetings are well organised and enjoyable and rather than feeling like extra work, it's more like an investment in my professional skills development as well as a contribution to my profession.

What is the most personally rewarding aspect of contributing to the National Scheme as a state board member?

Being a practitioner member is a unique opportunity to influence the current practice and future direction of psychology in Australia, through managing issues arising in Qld. As a member of the Qld Board, I feel that I am positively contributing to maintaining the high standards of the psychology profession and thereby protecting the public.

Being part of the board has given me a genuine sense of confidence in the regulation of a profession that I care deeply about. Seeing my colleagues treat each matter with compassion, fairness and respect has given me faith in the board's processes.

Ms Joan Wylie

Ms Wylie is a community member of the Tasmanian Board of the Medical Board of Australia.

'Community members should have an absolute passion for the community and a desire or commitment to protecting it by ensuring safe medical practice.'

What do you consider to be important attributes to successfully contribute to a health profession board as a community member?

A strong community member needs to bring a public perspective to the board. Community members should have an absolute passion for the community and a desire or commitment to protect it by ensuring safe medical practice. You must have the time to devote to the role and the work required.

There are different types of matters that members can become involved in, for example, immediate action, registration and notifications matters, so it is beneficial to make yourself available to participate in the full range of meetings.

What extra-curricular activities have you done in addition to your regular duties as a state board member?

I attend the Medical Board of Australia annual conference. It is essential that state board members attend, as it is worthwhile. The National Scheme's Research Summit and Combined Meeting are also useful because of the topics discussed and the networking opportunities. Also, participating in the Post Graduate Medical Education Council of Tasmania conference added to my overall knowledge.

I accompanied the Tasmanian Board Chair when we went to speak to final year medical students and provided them with information about the work of Ahpra and the state board.

I also think the governance workshops provided by Ahpra are a valuable resource for all board members. It is important that you attend when opportunities such as these arise, as they add to your knowledge and experience when carrying out the board's work.

What advice would you give to a new member joining a health profession board for the first time?

Be prepared for every meeting. Take the time to find out what the role of a member entails. There are national committees in which you can become involved. There are resources available, such as the National Law. You do not need to know it inside out, but if you have some knowledge, it will help your decision-making.

Get to know your fellow board members because they are an incredible source of knowledge and experience. I have learnt a lot about the National Law and the National Scheme from the people that I have had the privilege to work with. Be patient as you cannot learn everything straight away. Be prepared to ask questions and learn the ropes. This may take some time – I am in my second term on the Board and still do have a lot to learn. Remember that the main goal of the National Scheme is to protect the public.

State, territory and regional boards selection process frequently asked questions

How do I apply for the State, territory and regional board vacancies?

AHPRA's website lists all vacancies on the Board Member Recruitment page. A listing of all state, territory and regional board vacancies can be accessed via the following link:

www.ahpra.gov.au/National-Boards/Statutory-Appointments/Board-member-recruitment.aspx#state

This link will navigate you to the online recruitment platform where you can complete an online application form.

For more information on how to complete your online application form, please refer to the Applicant instructions for using PageUp.

I am a current board member. Do I need to submit an online application form?

Yes, all applicants, including current members must submit an online application form for any board member role for which they are applying.

Can I submit hard copy application forms?

We do not accept paper-based application forms for these campaigns. If you wish to be considered for one of the member vacancies, you must submit an online application.

How long will the recruitment process take?

The appointment process includes advertising, collating of applications, shortlisting, probity checking and approval by the Minister of Health in the state or territory where the appointment is made. This means that an appointment process can take at least six months to finalise. Ahpra will endeavour to keep applicants up to date with the general progress of campaigns at regular intervals. Communications will be facilitated by email via the online recruitment portal PageUp. At the conclusion of the campaigns, all applicants will be advised via email of the outcome of their application.

Who will be considering my application to be a board member?

A Selection Advisory Panel (SAP) will be convened to consider applications and provide advice on the proposed candidate(s) for appointment. The SAP usually includes a nominee of the Minister, the National Board and Ahpra.

Shortlisted candidates may be interviewed or assessed to ensure that they have the necessary qualifications, skills and experience for the position.

All appointments are made by the Minister for Health in the state or territory where the appointment is to be made.

How will my application be assessed?

The SAP will look at which candidate(s) have the most suitable skills and experience for appointment to the Board. Here are some of the factors that are considered when assessing applicants:

- Board member attributes – there are six formal attributes for a Board member and three attributes for Board Chairs
- Professional experience / expertise
- Community involvement/activities
- Diversity considerations such as gender, disability, regional/rural, cultural, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander
- Board/committee/panel experience, and
- Ability to meet time commitments

What sort of checks will be undertaken of my professional standing during the recruitment and selection process?

Probity checks

Probity checks may be undertaken to establish the suitability and character of an applicant:

- a criminal history check
- an Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC) disqualification register check
- a National Personal Insolvency Index check conducted through the Australian Financial Security Authority (AFSA), and
- in the case of a practitioner applicant, a check of the National register will be undertaken to ensure that the practitioner is of good standing.

Reference checks

Reference checks for shortlisted candidates may be conducted. Applicants are asked to nominate three referees who can support their application relevant to the professional requirements of board member attributes.

Please note that current members of National, State, Territory and Regional Boards and their committees, Ahpra staff and other applicants may be considered unsuitable as referees due to potential conflicts of interest that could arise in providing reference checks.

Referees must be advised in advance that they may be contacted by Ahpra staff.

Where can I find more specific information about the role and the requirements of being a board member?

Refer to the State, Territory and Regional Board member role information which includes more specific details about the role including information about eligibility requirements, time commitments, remuneration, accountabilities of members and the board member attributes.

How are board members paid?

Board and committee members are paid either a half or full day sitting fee which is inclusive of preparation time and up to four hours of travel time. The National Boards and Ahpra understand that the remuneration received by board members for their preparation and participation in board and committee meetings is considerably less than what an individual would earn in their professional roles. We appreciate that members make themselves available in the public interest and hope that the experience of ensuring the safety of the public is a challenging and rewarding one.

Who do I contact if I have further questions?

Please contact statutory appointments via email at statutoryappointments@ahpra.gov.au.

Position purpose

The National Law provides for a National Board to establish a board in a state, territory and region (often known as a STR board) to exercise its functions in the jurisdiction in a way that provides an effective and timely local response to health practitioners and other persons in the jurisdiction. Some National Boards have STR boards in each jurisdiction, some have cross-jurisdictional regional boards and others do not have any STR boards.

These boards make registration and notification decisions about individual practitioners, based on national policies and standards set by the relevant National Board. The National Board delegates the necessary powers to the STR boards. Please note: Notifications are not handled by the state boards in NSW.

To assist in effectively managing registration and notifications matters, committees of the National Board or the STR board have been established in each jurisdiction. Most members of the STR boards will be appointed to at least one of these committees. The STR boards carry out this regulatory work in partnership with Ahpra.

All state, territory and regional board appointments are made by the respective Minister for Health in each jurisdiction under Section 36 of the National Law.

Government or statutory employees

Ahpra recognises that government and statutory employees may be bound by their employer policy regarding payment for employment undertaken outside of the employer, which may alter the way board members are paid.

Ahpra recommends applicants consult with their employer prior to applying to ensure a written acknowledgement of permission (on the organisation's letterhead) from your employer can be arranged, should your application be successful. This requirement is the responsibility of the prospective board member/applicant.

Statutory protections

Under section 236 of the National Law, members of national boards and state and territory boards are provided with appropriate statutory immunities for exercising their functions in good faith.

Key activities

Accountabilities	Key Activities
Regulatory Principles	The regulatory principles adopted by Ahpra and the National Boards are as follows: <ol style="list-style-type: none">1. The boards and Ahpra administer and comply with the Health Practitioner Regulation National Law, as in force in each state and territory. The scope of our work is defined by the National Law.2. We protect the health and safety of the public by ensuring that only health practitioners who are suitably trained and qualified to practise in a competent and ethical manner are registered.

	3. While we balance all the objectives of the National Registration and Accreditation Scheme, our primary consideration is to protect the public. 4. When we are considering an application for registration, or when we become aware of concerns about a health practitioner, we protect the public by taking timely and necessary action under the National Law. 5. In all areas of our work we: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - identify the risks that we are obliged to respond to - assess the likelihood and possible consequences of the risks and - respond in ways that are proportionate and manage risks so we can adequately protect the public. This does not only apply to the way in which we manage individual practitioners but in all of our regulatory decision-making, including in the development of standards, policies, codes and guidelines. 6. When we take action about practitioners, we use the minimum regulatory force to manage the risk posed by their practice, to protect the public. Our actions are designed to protect the public and not to punish practitioners. While our actions are not intended to punish, we acknowledge that practitioners will sometimes feel that our actions are punitive. 7. Community confidence in health practitioner regulation is important. Our response to risk considers the need to uphold professional standards and maintain public confidence in the regulated health professions. 8. We work with our stakeholders, including the public and professional associations to achieve good and protective outcomes. We do not represent the health professions or health practitioners. However, we will work with practitioners and their representatives to achieve outcomes that protect the public.
Board meetings	Meetings may be either face to face, ZOOM (or similar) or via teleconference.
Confidentiality	Members are required to comply with the confidentiality requirements of section 216 of the National Law. Any information that comes to a member's knowledge, in the course of, or because of the member's role is protected information and must not be disclosed or made allowed to be disclosed to another person, organisation or entity.
Conflict of interest and bias	The National Law includes extensive provisions in relation to conflicts of interest. Members must comply with the conflict of interest requirements set out in Clause 8 of Schedule 4 of the National Law. The National Boards have business rules and processes in place to record and manage real and/or perceived conflicts of interest. As a general rule, board members must declare any actual and possible conflict of interest in relation to matters to be considered at a meeting. Board members must also exclude themselves from decision-making in relation to a matter in which they are biased, or might be perceived to be biased.
Training and development	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Orientation – Newly appointed board members will be provided with a comprehensive orientation program. • Training - Participation at conferences or planning days may be required. • Performance review - Boards will formally review the performance of individual board members.
