Functions of state boards

The National Law provides that a National Board may establish state, territory and regional boards to exercise its functions in the jurisdiction in a way that provides an effective and timely local response to health practitioners and other persons in the jurisdiction. Some National Boards have state, territory or regional boards in each jurisdiction, some have multi-jurisdictional regional boards and others do not have state or territory boards.

These boards make registration and notification decisions about individual practitioners, based on national policies and standards set by the relevant national board. The National Board delegates the necessary powers to the state, territory and/or regional boards.

What is involved in being a state board member?

The time commitment required of a state board member will vary but may be at least one to two days per month, in addition to travel time to and from the meetings.

Board members may be required to attend different types of meetings, such as registration, notifications and/or immediate action committee meetings.

In preparation for board meetings, members are usually required to read a substantial amount of material in the week prior to the meeting. Board meetings may be either face to face or via teleconference. Participation at conferences or planning days may also be required.

As the time commitment varies for each jurisdiction, you will be provided with more detail about the specific requirements of the board in your jurisdiction should you be interviewed by a selection advisory panel.

Membership of other organisations or professional bodies

Many applicants are members of professional organisations which are relevant to their practice, and/or their employment and professional interests.

The National Law does not preclude a person being appointed to both a state/territory board and the executive, committee or a board of a professional organisation. However, this type of dual appointment may give rise to a real or perceived conflict of interest between meeting your responsibilities to the organisation and your regulatory obligations as a board member.

Before you submit your application, you may wish to consider whether this type of conflict of interest is manageable over the term of the appointment. If you are unsure about your situation, please ensure that you declare it in the Declaration of Private Interests section of the application form.

Managing conflict of interest and bias

The National Law includes extensive provisions in relation to conflicts of interest. Members must comply with the conflict of interest requirements set out in Clause 8 of Schedule 4 of the National Law.

The National Boards have business rules and processes in place to record and manage real and/or perceived conflicts of interest. As a general rule, board members must declare any actual and possible conflict of interest in relation to matters to be considered at a meeting. Board members must also exclude themselves from decision-making in relation to a matter in which they are biased, or might be perceived to be biased.

Statutory protections

Under section 236 of the National Law, members of national boards and state and territory boards are provided with appropriate statutory immunities for exercising their functions in good faith.

Confidentiality

Members are required to comply with the confidentiality requirements of section 216 of the National Law. Any information that comes to a member's knowledge, in the course of, or because of the member's role is protected information and must not be disclosed or made allowed to be disclosed to another person, organisation or entity.

Eligibility requirements

Community member

To be eligible for appointment under the National Law as a community member, you must not currently be, or have previously been, a registered health practitioner in the health profession for which the board is established.

With a sound understanding of health issues and services, a community member will represent the views and opinions of members of the community.

For a community member to be eligible for appointment for a position on a specific state and territory board, it is expected that you would reside in that particular jurisdiction.

Referees must be advised in advance that they may be contacted by AHPRA staff.

Remuneration

The remuneration for members of a State or Territory Board is determined by the Ministerial Council in accordance with the National Law. Remuneration is usually adjusted on an annual basis according to the consumer price index.

The current remuneration (daily sitting fee) is as follows:

As a general guide, the daily fee applies for board member attendance in person or by telephone at a scheduled Board meeting. The daily fee includes meeting preparation time for the scheduled Board meeting and up to four hours of travel time. For meetings of a shorter duration (less than four hours), half the daily fee is payable.

Payment must be made to the member and not through a company account or private business. More information will be provided on successful appointment.

Expenses

Board members are entitled to reimbursement of any reasonable out-of-pocket expenses incurred during the course of undertaking Board business.

More information on allowances and the process of payments and claims will be provided if you are appointed.

Government or statutory employees

AHPRA recognises that government and statutory employees may be bound by their employer policy regarding payment for employment undertaken outside of the employer, which may alter the way board members are paid.

AHPRA recommends applicants consult with their employer prior to applying to ensure a written acknowledgement of permission (on the organisation's letterhead) from your employer can be arranged, should your application be successful. This requirement is the responsibility of the prospective board member/applicant.

Communication with applicants about campaigns

The appointment processes for territory boards can take months to finalise and AHPRA will endeavour to keep applicants up to date with the general progress of campaigns at regular intervals. Communications will be facilitated by email via the online recruitment portal PageUp. At the conclusion of the campaigns, all applicants will be advised via email of the outcome of their application.
