Senior Lecturer in General Practice

College/Division: Health and Medicine
School/Section: Medicine
Location: Launceston
Classification: Level C
Reporting line: Director, Launceston Clinical School

Position Summary

The University of Tasmania is building a vision of a place-based University with a mission to enhance the intellectual, economic, social, and cultural future of Tasmania, and from Tasmania, contribute to the world in areas of distinctive advantage. The University recognises that achieving this vision is dependent on the people we employ as well as creating a people-centred University that is values-based, relational, diverse, and development-focused.

We are seeking to appoint a Senior Lecturer in General Practice in the Tasmanian School of Medicine which is part of the College of Health and Medicine. The Senior Lecturer in General Practice is a Teaching Intensive position which will have a substantial role in medical education for the Medicine Program. The appointee will be primarily involved in the co-ordination and oversight of teaching and assessment in Year 3 and coordination of the General Practice and community-based rotations associated with the Launceston Clinical School. This will be associated with a contribution to relevant areas of the School’s curriculum development and research activities. The appointee will be required to undertake administrative duties within the Tasmanian School of Medicine, particularly with respect to the General Practice/community rotations and teaching.

We are an inclusive workplace committed to ‘working from the strength that diversity brings’ reflected in our Statement of Values. We are dedicated to attracting, retaining and developing our people and are committed to inclusive principles. We celebrate the range of diverse assets that gender identity, ethnicity, sexual orientation, disability, age and life course bring. Applications are encouraged from all sectors of the community. Tell us how we can make this job work for you.

What You’ll Do

- Make a strong and sustained contribution to the University in achieving its strategic objectives and fulfilling its operational responsibilities.
- Undertake scholarly undergraduate (and if relevant postgraduate) coursework teaching of an exemplary quality, including unit coordination, development of teaching materials and delivery of teaching and student assessment.
- Increasingly provide academic leadership, particularly in fostering outstanding research and/or learning and teaching.
- Contribute to high-quality research of national and increasingly of international standing in the field of Medicine aligned with College research themes.
- Contribute to the development and maintenance of productive and effective links inside the University and locally and nationally with the discipline, relevant interdisciplinary domains, profession, industry and/or wider community.
- Undertake other duties as assigned by the supervisor.
What We’re Looking For (success criteria)

- Completion of recognised primary medical qualification permitting registration by the Medical Board of Australia.
- Experience and demonstrated achievement in University-level teaching and learning, especially in areas related to clinical teaching and training.
- A good record of working collaboratively within a team to achieve a common goal and display the ability to work in a manner that aligns with the University's values.
- A record of contributing effectively to building and maintaining effective and productive links locally and nationally with the discipline, profession, industry (where relevant) and wider community.
- Clinical/industry/professional experience relevant to the position.

University of Tasmania

The University of Tasmania is an institution with an enduring commitment to our state and community, and a strong global outlook. We are committed to enhancing the intellectual, economic, social and cultural future of Tasmania. Our Strategic Direction strongly reflects the University community's voice that our University must be place based but globally connected as well as regionally networked and designed to deliver quality access to higher education for the whole State.

We believe that from our unique position here in Tasmania we can impact the world through the contributions of our staff, students and graduates. We recognise that achieving this vision is dependent on the people we employ, as well as creating a university that is values-based, relational, diverse, and development-focused.
