

Information for prospective candidates

ACADEMIC APPOINTMENT ROUND 2022:
POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWS

FEBRUARY 2022

Australian
National University

ANU COLLEGE OF LAW

Welcome from the Dean

It is my pleasure to introduce The Australian National University College of Law, the intellectual home of some of Australia's foremost experts in international, constitutional, public and private law.

For more than 60 years, the ANU College of Law has built a community of scholars whose expertise spans the globe and spectrum of legal endeavour.

Our campus is located at the heart of Canberra, the national capital. In addition to being a hub for foreign missions, the Australian Parliament and other national institutions, it is also one of the world's best student cities renowned for being safe, clean and green.

If you would like the opportunity to be extraordinary, then ANU will nurture you to achieve your potential.

I look forward to welcoming you to ANU.

Professor Sally Wheeler

OBE, MRIA, FAcSS, FAAL

Deputy Vice-Chancellor for International Strategy and Dean of ANU College of Law

Contents

By the numbers	2
About ANU College of Law	3
Research excellence	4
Education	6
Finding my ‘research home’	8
Advertisement	12
Position description	13
How to apply	16
Canberra – the capital advantage	17
A world-leading university	18
Employee benefits	20
Contact	22

Published February 2022 by ANU College of Law, The Australian National University.
CRICOS Provider Number: 00120C

By the numbers

The Australian National University (ANU) is one of the world's leading centres for research and education. Our global reputation and rankings allow us to attract the best staff and students from around the world.

One of the highest academic staff-to-student ratios

Good Universities Guide 2019

Five-star maximum rating for student demand, student retention, student-teacher ratio and staff qualifications

Good Universities Guide 2019

Five-star max rating for law and legal studies research

2018 Excellence in Research for Australia (ERA) rankings

Ranked in the top 20 in the world for law

QS World Rankings by Subject 2021

The top ranked university in Australia for international outlook

2021 Times Higher Education Most International Universities in the World

Ranked 1st in Australia and 27th in the world

QS World University Rankings 2022

ANU counts six Nobel Laureates among our staff and alumni including our Vice-Chancellor

About ANU College of Law

Since 1960, ANU College of Law has stood as a leader in legal research, addressing contemporary legal, social and political challenges in Australia and around the world. Balancing global outlook with local focus, we have a long-standing reputation for excellence in legal education, research and community outreach.

This, coupled with our role as the national university, means we have a responsibility to be ambitious, bold and transformative in our research and teaching. Our campus is located at the heart of the national capital, alongside foreign missions, the Australian Parliament, other national institutions, research organisations and government departments.

Across undergraduate, postgraduate and research degrees, we provide our students with a unique understanding of current law and policy.

As Australia's national law school, we provide national research leadership on the most important legal, regulatory and governance challenges facing Australia, the Asia-Pacific region and the world. ANU leads the nation in research excellence, confirming our reputation as a world-class university for law and legal research by receiving the highest possible ranking in the 2018 Excellence in Research for Australia (ERA). ANU legal scholars have received a five-star rating in all four rounds of the ERA since it began in 2010. The ERA results recognise the University's continuing tradition of global excellence in legal research.

Our capital city location links us with the nation's key law-making and legislative bodies. Our researchers work closely with government departments, research agencies, NFPs/NGOs, other universities and the wider legal community to support and enhance legal education, research and policy in Australia and around the world.

Research excellence

Recognised around the world, our research has long been known for scholarly excellence and positive impact. Since our beginning, we have attracted academics, researchers and practitioners from across Australia and abroad. Together, these scholars have engaged with governments, communities and the wider legal profession to produce world-class research, and make important contributions to the development of the law and public policy.

Humanising Machine Intelligence

Funded by the ANU Grand Challenges Scheme, the Humanising Machine Intelligence (HMI) project is an interdisciplinary, impact-driven research collaboration between computer scientists, ethicists, mathematicians, lawyers and sociologists. Among its chief investigators is ANU College of Law Associate Professor Will Bateman. The HMI project aims to harness the power of artificial intelligence while ensuring society's best qualities are protected. "The biggest challenge is ensuring public law rules, which control governance, are applied to algorithmic public service utilisation," says Dr Bateman. "I'm running a major research project explicitly focused on updating public law principles that apply to governance to ensure that people's individual rights and group rights are properly protected in the age of AI."

Innovative, interdisciplinary and international

With more than 30 years of history, the ANU Centre for International and Public Law enjoys a well-deserved reputation as a hub of international legal thought and debate. In 2021, three of our scholars - Professor Jeremy Farrall, Professor Jolyon Ford SFHEA and Associate Professor Imogen Saunders - were awarded $610,700 in Australian Research Council funding for their project, 'Reconceiving Engagement with International Law in a Populist Era'. The project seeks to address the fundamental problem of how to reconceive engagement by states with the international legal order in the face of a sustained populist backlash.

A powerhouse for socio-legal research

In 2021, the ANU College of Law made history when three of our researchers were awarded almost $1.3 million in Federal Government funding for their interdisciplinary, socio-legal projects under the Discovery Early Career Researcher Awards (DECRA) scheme. The awards to Associate Professor Rebecca Monson, Associate Professor Moeen Cheema and Dr Eve Lester made ANU the first Australian university to secure three DECRA grants in the Law and Legal Studies field of research in a single year.

Unique strengths in law and technology scholarship

The ANU College of Law is a hub for some of the Asia-Pacific region's leading scholars in the field of law and technology. From artificial intelligence and automation to robotics and rule of law, our research aims to solve real-world issues, enrich international scholarship, influence policymaking and improve the law's application of technology.

International partnerships and global engagement

Our research is enriched by our partnerships with universities, governments and businesses across the Asia-Pacific region. We are a proud founding member of the National Law Schools Network that also comprises the National University of Singapore, Peking University and the University of Tokyo, all members of the International Association of Research Universities (IARU) alliance. The National Law Schools Network aims to strengthen relations with partners in our region, and to share insights and ideas on shared challenges of national law schools.

Education

Bringing together extensive experience and real-world insight, our teachers are experts both in their legal disciplines and in legal education. Our scholars engage regularly with government and the profession, producing world-class scholarship and making important contributions to the development of the law and public policy.

Degrees

- Bachelor of Laws (Hons)
- Juris Doctor
- Master of Financial Management and Law
- Master of Laws
- Master of International Law and Diplomacy
- Master of Philosophy
- Graduate Certificate of Law
- Graduate Certificate of New Technologies Law
- PhD

Alumni

With over 23,000 ANU Law graduates across Australia and around the world, our alumni can be found working not only as lawyers, but agents for social change, public policy and global diplomacy.

Teaching facilities

We have recently finished refurbishing our facilities to provide modern teaching and learning spaces to educate the next generation of lawyers. Features:

- State-of-the-art teaching spaces
- Social and collaborative student spaces
- New and modern moot court

Research-led education

A number of ANU courses adopt a research-led curriculum whereby subject content is based on the specialist research interests of the teaching staff. For example, in 2020 Professor Vivien Holmes and Honorary Associate Professor Peter Burnett supervised a study by GreenLaw under the ANU Law Reform and Social Justice research and policy group. The study, an empirical review of all 32 cases under Australia's federal environment laws between 2009 to 2019, dispelled the myth of federal courts being inundated with 'lawfare' and 'green tape', finding the cases accounted for just 0.06 per cent of the Federal Court's annual caseload.

In 2021, GreenLaw students spoke before the Australian Capital Territory (ACT) Standing Committee on Environment, Climate Change and Biodiversity's Inquiry into Renewable Energy Innovation in the region. Their testimony expanded on a written submission to the Inquiry on the benefits of community-scale batteries and how to incentivise their uptake in the ACT.

Finding my ‘research home’ at the ANU College of Law

Dr Jessica Hambly is a socio-legal scholar and Deputy Director of the ANU Law Reform and Social Justice (LRSJ) research and policy group. She joined the ANU College of Law as a postdoctoral fellow in February 2020.

With research interests spanning asylum law and procedure, refugee rights, gender and migration, legal geography, and other fields, Dr Hambly was drawn to the ANU College of Law by its reputation as “a top research institution with leading scholars in the field”.

“I wanted a ‘research home’ where I could develop my own research, but also know that I’m in a network of other research-intensive scholars,” she says.

As Australia’s national law school, the ANU College of Law strives to shape and influence public policy with an emphasis on the values of law reform and social justice. For Dr Hambly, the opportunity to embed this ethos in her research and teaching was a huge advantage.

“When I was looking up ANU College of Law, LRSJ was one of the research groups that caught my eye. It was a real standout to see this as an initiative and reflect the College’s own commitment to social justice,” she says of the group, which has a dozen student-led projects related to Indigenous reconciliation, climate justice, refugees, rule of law and more.

“A lot of my research is socio-legal and related to the courts, so to have these institutions— from the ACT Supreme Court to the High Court of Australia—literally on our doorstep is really exciting.”

Dr Hambly was then appointed as a Senior Lecturer in October 2021, sealing a memorable experience as a postdoctoral fellow shaped by significant research outputs.

“The opportunities were there to progress my career. It was really nice to be trusted with things quite early on, from projects that align with my expertise and research interests to other things that challenged me,” she says.

The opportunities for transdisciplinary work at ANU—home to seven academic colleges and dozens of schools—have also paved the way for meaningful scholarly collaborative experiences, says Dr Hambly.

“You could be any legal scholar and find someone outside of law who is doing similar research to you,” she explains.

“Early on, I was involved in NECTAR (The Network for Early Career Academics at ANU). It gave me the opportunity to meet other early career scholars from across ANU.”

Originally from the United Kingdom, Dr Hambly admits life in the ‘bush capital’ won her over soon after arriving with its abundance of accessible green space, picturesque natural environment and rich bushland settings.

“The city itself was a massive attraction,” she says.

“I love living in Canberra because you have political and cultural institutions, the lake (Lake Burley Griffin), mountains and just a really high standard of living. It lends itself to an excellent work–life balance.”

Dr Faith Gordon FRSA

Associate Professor, ANU College of Law

“The ANU College of Law is situated on beautiful campus grounds and as staff members we are immersed in the beauty of Australian wildlife and scenery every day.

“I am from Northern Ireland originally and ANU has provided a welcoming intellectual home for me and a real sense of community.

“As Australia’s national university, the institution has provided me with excellent opportunities to continue to grow and develop the local, national and international reach of my research.

“Coupled with the rich intellectual culture and highest standards in academic research, the ANU College of Law prioritises student experience and provides a tailored education programme for the future lawyers and changemakers in Australia and beyond. The ANU College of Law has an inspiring tradition of promoting social justice and contributing to law reform, through research, advocacy and also encouraging our students to engage actively in these important spaces.

“If you are like me and your scholarship has a core element of wanting to effect policy change and make an impact, Canberra is the city for you to achieve this. We are logistically close to the heart of the Australian Government and as an institution, we have a reputation for successful engagement with policymakers and for producing world-leading research leading to real-world impact.”

Dr Ntina Tzouvala

Associate Professor, ANU College of Law

“The ANU College of Law is a powerhouse in the fields of international and public law as well as legal theory and inter-disciplinary approaches to law. Our students come from around Australia and the world and our teaching focuses both on doctrinal rigour and social reform and justice. This is a collegiate and intellectually thriving environment that is especially supportive of early-career researchers. And Canberra certainly offers more than meets the eye!”

Dr Jonathan Liljeblad

Associate Professor, ANU College of Law

“The location of ANU in the national capital provides a significant benefit for research, teaching, or consulting work related to international affairs or federal issues. Canberra hosts all the international embassies and the offices of international organisations. In addition, the city contains the head offices for all ministries and branches of government: executive, legislative, and judicial. As a result, ANU enjoys a close institutional relationship with a range of entities directly relevant to anyone with interests in public law and public policy at global and national levels.”

Dr Damian Clifford

Senior Lecturer, ANU College of Law

“The ANU College of Law is such a welcoming place. When I took up my position at the ANU and arrived in Canberra, I was struck by the friendliness of the staff and the excellent environment the College offers for world-class research and teaching.

“As an early career academic, the ANU College of Law has afforded me the scope and opportunities necessary to continue developing my career. I feel supported and encouraged and I am very happy to be an ANU College of Law academic.”

Advertisement

Classification

Academic (Level B)
Postdoctoral Fellow

Salary package

$103,841–$117,736
plus 17% superannuation

Terms

Full time, Fixed term
(two-or three-year appointments)

Position overview

The ANU College of Law is recognised as one of Australia's leaders in legal research and education. Located in Australia's capital city, Canberra, the ANU College of Law is home to four research centres, a law reform and social justice initiative, and has built strong networks with lawmakers, the judiciary and legal academics throughout Australia and the world.

The ANU College of Law seeks to appoint Postdoctoral Fellows who are ready to enhance their academic career in one of the world's foremost research universities. ANU attracts leading academics and outstanding students from Australia and around the world.

To be successful as a Postdoctoral Fellow, you will share the commitment the College places on supporting staff to reach their full potential in an environment of collegiality and respect for diversity.

We welcome applications from candidates pursuing research in the following areas:

- Legal Technology
- Defence Law/Military Law (including a focus on autonomous weapons and nuclear capacity regulation)
- Property Law (including equity)
- Law of Obligations
- Law and Technology
- Indigenous Legal Studies
- Intellectual Property Law
- Public Law
- International Law
- Law and Economics

If successful, you will receive excellent career mentoring within the ANU College of Law and the wider ANU. You will also be encouraged to take advantage of opportunities to expand your range of research skills by being able to draw on a research support fund. Up to four appointments will be made, and will be for a period of two or three years. Please specify which length of appointment you are applying for as the conditions for each are different as specified in the position description.

For all enquiries, please contact Professor Sally Wheeler, Dean, ANU College of Law, T +61 2 6125 4070 or E Sally.Wheeler@anu.edu.au

ANU values diversity and inclusion and is committed to providing equal employment opportunities to those of all backgrounds and identities. For more information about staff equity at ANU, visit: <https://services.anu.edu.au/human-resources/respect-inclusion>

Application information

In order to apply for this role please make sure that you upload the following documents:

- A statement addressing the selection criteria.
- A current curriculum vitae (CV) which includes details of education, professional training and qualifications, full list of publications, positions held (including relevant dates, titles, responsibilities and key achievements), details of teaching and/or research experience, and any other relevant information such as contributions to professional associations and learned societies, and community activities.

Applicants must also provide full contact details for three referees who have agreed to supply confidential references. Candidates should state their relationship to the referees. It is the candidates responsibility to ensure referees are willing to provide reports when contacted.

POSITION DESCRIPTION

Lecturer (Academic Level B)

College/Division:	ANU College of Law
Faculty/School/Centre:	ANU Law School
Position title:	Postdoctoral Fellow
Classification:	Academic Level B
Responsible to:	Head of School

Purpose statement

A Postdoctoral Fellow (Academic Level B) is expected to carry out independent research within the field in which they are appointed and to carry out activities to develop their research expertise relevant to the particular field of research. The core purpose of all the positions on academic staff is to make a contribution to advancing the discipline of law by: a) exploring the boundaries of legal knowledge through research, scholarship, and the dissemination of scholarship; b) educating future lawyers and associated professionals to be competent, ethical, and act in the service of society; c) sharing and spreading the benefit of legal knowledge and skills amongst wider audiences by engaging in appropriate outreach activities; and d) infusing all of these activities with an interest in underlying questions of law reform and/or social justice.

Position dimension and relationships

Two-year appointment: Prepare a variety of high quality published outputs, for example, through monographs, peer-reviewed articles or edited volumes. Outputs must be returnable in the 'Excellence in Research Australia (ERA)', Field of Research (FoR) for #18 (legal studies). Undertake a small teaching commitment in the second year of the appointment, which will be designed to deliver an experience of the Higher Education environment.

Three-year appointment: Develop either a new research project or a research project that demonstrates a significant development of the subject of the Post Doctoral Fellow's doctorate. This will be done through a variety of appropriate, feasible and clear published outputs, which must be returnable in the ERA FoR 18 (i.e. legal studies). Seek Australian Research Council (ARC) or similar funding and receive mentoring to achieve this. Undertake a small teaching commitment in years two and three of the appointment, which will be designed to deliver experience of the Higher Education environment.

Role statement

Specific duties required of a Post Doctoral Fellow (Academic Level B) may include:

- The conduct of research either as a member of a team or independently, and the production of publications from that research.
- Involvement in professional activities including, subject to availability of funds, attendance at conferences and seminars in the field of expertise.
- Apply to funding bodies to enable efficient progression of the research plan.
- Administrative functions primarily connected with his/her area of research.

- A small fractional contribution to the LLB or LLM teaching program within the field of the staff member's research.
- Co-supervision, or where appropriate supervision, of major honours or postgraduate research projects within the field of the staff member's area of research.
- Attendance at meetings associated with research or the work of the organisational unit to which the research is connected and/or departmental and/or faculty meetings and/or membership of a limited number of committees.
- Compliance with all ANU policies and procedures, including those relating to work health and safety and equal opportunity.
- Other duties as allocated by the supervisor or the Vice-Chancellor consistent with the classification of the position.

Skill base

Applicants are required to have been awarded their PhD and to have authored at least one peer reviewed publication during their PhD or since its award. This publication cannot be a book review, a review article, a piece in refereed conference proceedings or a submission in a student journal. A contribution to an edited collection is acceptable provided that evidence of peer review can be supplied.

Selection criteria

- LLB with honours (or equivalent) and a PhD in law or a cognate discipline awarded within the last 12 months.
- Demonstrated research skills with a clear future research agenda and awareness of how your research agenda compliments research currently being undertaken at the ANU College of Law and the wider ANU.
- Awareness of the impact of research agenda as currently defined by the Australian Research Council (ARC).
- Demonstrated ability to undertake high quality original research and scholarship and, for a three year appointment, an ability and interest in obtaining external research funding from the ARC or other appropriate funders to support individual and collaborative research activities.
- Demonstrated ability to publish research findings in high quality publication outlets.
- Demonstrated ability to deliver effective teaching and course administration.
- Ability to undertake outreach activities in line with the interests of the College.
- Demonstrated effective interpersonal skills both verbal and written, including the ability to prepare grant applications, reports and present results to a range of audiences, and an ability to liaise effectively with a wide range of people in a culturally diverse environment.
- Understanding of equal opportunity principles and commitment to their application in a university context.

How to apply

Application information

In order to apply for this role, please make sure that you upload the following documents via ANU Recruit jobs.anu.edu.au

A statement addressing the selection criteria

Respond to each of the selection criteria, taking into account experience, past roles and expertise.

A current Curriculum Vitae (CV)

- Details of education, professional training and qualifications.
- Full list of publications.
- Positions held, including relevant dates, titles, responsibilities and key achievements.
- Details of teaching and/or research experience.
- Any other relevant information such as contributions to professional associates and learned societies, and community activities.

Research plan

A proposed research plan (two or three years) including a Gantt chart of no more than two pages.

Selection process

These positions will be for a period of two or three years. Please make it clear in your application which length of appointment you are applying for.

Shortlisted candidates will be asked to provide two written references in support of their application prior to the interview. It is the candidates' responsibility to ensure referees provide a report that can be considered.

Interviews will be held in-person or via Zoom for all shortlisted candidates.

Anticipated timelines

Advertising commences

Friday 11 March 2022

Applications close

Wednesday 20 April 2022

Shortlisting of candidates

26 - 27 April 2022

Shortlisted candidates notified and asked to provide references

28 - 29 April 2022

Shortlisted candidates interviewed

9 - 13 May 2022

Successful candidates notified

Mid-late May 2022

Commencement of successful candidates

Negotiable

Enquiries

Professor Sally Wheeler
OBE, MRIA, FAcSS, FAAL
Dean, ANU College of Law

T +61 2 6125 4070

E sally.wheeler@anu.edu.au

Canberra — the capital advantage

At ANU, you'll be warmly welcomed into a safe, inclusive and collaborative environment that facilitates immersion and offers a strong sense of togetherness and community spirit.

Our proximity to the High Court of Australia, Parliament House, Commonwealth courts and federal agencies offers unparalleled access to legal practitioners, members of the judiciary and government policymakers, many of whom are ANU Law alumni.

Canberra offers a different cultural experience to other Australian cities and is incredibly easy to get around — the city has the shortest commute times of any major Australian city and a newly opened light-rail network.

Most liveable city

Canberra is one of the world's most liveable cities, ranking first for quality of life ahead of Sydney and Melbourne.

2021 Numbeo Quality of Life Index

Safest

Canberra is considered one of the safest cities in Australia with one of the lowest crime rates.

Global community

A city of just over 411,000 people with more than 27 per cent of our residents born overseas, Canberra is a multicultural city with a strong sense of community.

A world-leading university

ANU is one of the world's foremost research universities. Distinguished by our relentless pursuit of excellence, the University attracts leading academics and outstanding students from Australia and around the world.

Further information about ANU and its vision for the future can be found at:
<https://bit.ly/ANU2025>

History

The University was established by the Commonwealth Parliament in 1946 specifically to lead the development of the intellectual capacity of the nation through research and research training in line with the best international standards. It is the only Australian university established by a Commonwealth Act of Parliament. In 1960, the University accepted responsibility for undergraduate education along with an expectation that the highest standards of education would be achieved.

Scale

The University has 4,300 staff, 10,286 undergraduates and 6,925 postgraduate students. Its annual revenue exceeds $1 billion and consolidated assets are worth $2.5 billion.

Partnerships

The University has strong links with leading research institutions in Australia and overseas. It is a founding member of the International Alliance of Research Universities (IARU), a cooperative network of 11 eminent international research-intensive universities which includes:

- University of Cambridge
- University of Oxford
- University of California, Berkeley
- Yale University
- University of Cape Town
- Peking University
- National University of Singapore
- University of Tokyo
- University of Copenhagen
- ETH Zurich

Research-intensive education

As the specially-chartered national university, ANU conducts research at the highest levels in all of its colleges, and offers a unique research-led education to undergraduate and postgraduate students as well as postdoctoral fellows.

The University advances the national intellectual and creative capacity in three key ways:

1. Through broad-based research and research-intensive education in the disciplines fundamental to all knowledge: the humanities, the sciences and the social sciences.
2. By supporting research and research-intensive education in a spectrum of professional disciplines.
3. By studying Australia in its various contexts.

It is the aim of the University to achieve its objectives by creating an inspirational working environment for all its staff, students and visitors.

In each of its endeavours, the University strives to achieve at the levels of the world's great universities.

Location

The University's Acton campus has more than 200 buildings and occupies 145 hectares adjacent to the city centre of Canberra. The University also has a number of smaller campuses:

- Mount Stromlo Observatory (west of Canberra)
- Siding Spring Observatory (near Coonabarabran, western New South Wales)
- North Australia Research Unit (Darwin, Northern Territory)
- Kioloa (coastal campus near Bawley Point, on the New South Wales South Coast)
- ANU Medical School – The Canberra Hospital campus
- ANU Medical School – Calvary Hospital
- Health facilities in south east New South Wales

Employee benefits

ANU provides a number of employee benefits for eligible employees.

Below is a brief summary of the benefits the ANU provides for eligible employees, which begin from the commencement of their appointment.

Family-friendly workplace

- Generous parental leave provisions — up to 26 weeks at full pay plus six weeks of career re-entry leave.
- On-campus childcare with the option to deduct payment from pre-tax salary.
- Flexible working arrangements.
- Breastfeeding facilities.
- Dual career (spousal) hires.

Career and professional development

- In-house and external staff development opportunities, including individual coaching program.
- Support for caring responsibility to attend conference/seminar.
- Outside studies program.
- Support for individual career planning/counselling services.
- Staff undergraduate and postgraduate scholarships. Career development leave program.
- Informal and formal mentoring.

Salary packaging

- Novated (car) leases.
- Airline membership — Qantas and Virgin Australia.
- Laptops.
- Parking — eligible staff are able to apply for permits for on-campus parking.
- Superannuation.

Health and wellbeing

- On-campus staff counselling service.
- Independent and confidential employee assistance program.
- On-campus fully credited primary health care facility — free flu vaccination.
- ANU Fitness Centre — gym and group fitness classes.
- Wellbeing programs for staff (e.g. women and men's health checks).
- Dedicated work environment group to support staff with work, health and safety matters.

Campus life and facilities

- Cafes, banks, ATMs, chemist, newsagent, bookshop, gym, pool and general practice.
- ANU is a smoke-free campus.
- Access to the University's five libraries.
- ANU GreenShare car service.
- Campus bicycle fleet and a network of walking and bike paths around campus.
- ANU Green Unit to help reduce our carbon footprint.
- Corporate discount for rental cars.
- Vehicle servicing and maintenance with Autoco Belconnen — free pick-up and drop-off from ANU.
- Well-established and maintained precincts for acoustic and other events.
- Well-maintained gardens and sporting/recreation facilities.

Salary and rewards

- Contribution of up to 17 per cent superannuation (in addition to base salary).
- On-campus UniSuper consultant available for general advice on superannuation.
- ANU staff health insurance plan with HCF for Australian resident and non-resident staff.
- Recognition of prior service with another Australian university or Commonwealth authority.

Learning communities

Student-led organisations inclusive and open to everyone. These communities encompass areas such as:

- Creative arts
- Cultures
- Global challenges
- History
- Sustainability

For additional information, please contact:

ANU College of Law Human Resources: hr.law@anu.edu.au

Contact

ANU College of Law

The Australian National University

Canberra ACT 2600 Australia

law.anu.edu.au

Follow us

@ANUCollegeofLaw

@ANUCollegeofLaw

@ANUCollegeofLaw

@ANU_Law

Australian
National University