Position Summary

The University of Tasmania is building a vision of a place-based University with a mission to enhance the intellectual, economic, social, and cultural future of Tasmania, and from Tasmania, contribute to the world in areas of distinctive advantage. The University recognises that achieving this vision is dependent on the people we employ as well as creating a people-centred University that is values-based, relational, diverse, and development-focused.

This is an exciting opportunity for a clinical academic leader to advance their career as Director of the Hobart Clinical School (HCS) within the Tasmanian School of Medicine, which is part of the College of Health and Medicine. The College has a focus on excellence in health research performance, as well as evidence-based learning and teaching to educate a new generation of agile health professionals with capability in leadership and future-focussed health care.

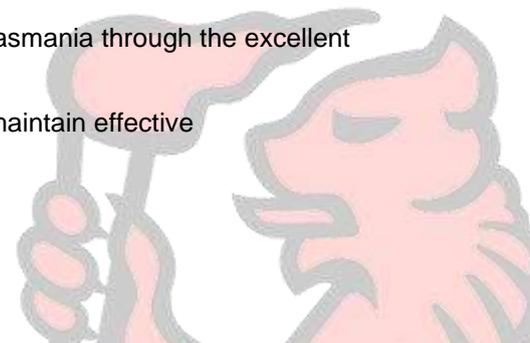

The Director will have an outstanding reputation as a leader in medical education, clinical practice, and research. Previous experience in clinical school leadership will be regarded favourably. The Director will support the development and maintenance of sustainable relationships across the College of Health and Medicine, with health service colleagues, with relevant professional organisations, and with the community.

This position is based in Hobart. There is the opportunity to negotiate combination of the position with a clinical appointment. Travel between campuses in Hobart, Launceston, and Burnie will be required.

We are an inclusive workplace committed to 'working from the strength that diversity brings' reflected in our Statement of Values. We are dedicated to attracting, retaining, and developing our people, and we are committed to inclusive principles. We celebrate the range of diverse assets that gender identity, ethnicity, sexual orientation, disability, age, and life course bring. Applications are encouraged from all sectors of the community. Tell us how we can make this job work for you.

What You'll Do

- Work with the Director of the Medicine Program and the Medicine Leadership Team to align the operations of the HCS with the strategic objectives of the School, College, and University.
- Ensure that the HCS complies with Australian Medical Council accreditation standards, and deliver high quality student experiences in cooperation with clinical schools on other campuses.
- Direct and participate in scholarly undergraduate (and if relevant postgraduate) coursework teaching of an exemplary quality, including digitally enhanced learning experiences.
- Provide academic leadership that fosters high performance in teaching and research, whilst facilitating the professional development of other staff.
- Support the School's contribution to improving health outcomes in Tasmania through the excellent quality of medical graduates.
- Represent the Medicine Program in professional fora, develop and maintain effective interdisciplinary relationships within the University, and engage locally, nationally, and internationally with stakeholders in health professions and the community.

- Participate in and/or facilitate high-quality research activity aligned to the strategic research priorities of the College, including application for external funding, publication of research findings and successful supervision of research higher degree students to completion.
- Undertake other duties as assigned by the supervisor.

What We're Looking For (success criteria)

- A record of successful academic and/or clinical leadership built on relevant postgraduate qualifications.
- Registration as a Medical Practitioner with the Medical Board of Australia and demonstrated achievement in clinical practice, medical education, and/or research.
- Advanced capability in university-level teaching, including design and development of innovative, contemporary curricula and learning experiences.
- Proven ability as an academic leader with a strong record in team building and creating effective working relationships, driving and inspiring engagement, and taking responsibility for mentoring professional development and growth in colleagues.
- Good standing in the medical and broader community, with sophisticated influencing skills and relationship development capability across diverse stakeholder groups. A history of success in achieving results through consensus, commitment, cooperation, and teamwork will be highly valued.
- A commitment to promoting work health and safety culture through personal example and the application of systems and processes.

University of Tasmania

The University of Tasmania is an institution with an enduring commitment to our state and community, and a strong global outlook. We are committed to enhancing the intellectual, economic, social, and cultural future of Tasmania. Our Strategic Direction strongly reflects the University community's voice that our University must be place-based but globally connected, as well as regionally networked and designed to deliver access to high quality tertiary education in all regions of the State.

We believe that from our unique position here in Tasmania we can make a positive impact in the world through the contributions of our staff, students, and graduates. We recognise that achieving this vision is dependent on the people we employ, as well as creating a university that is values-based, relational, diverse, and development-focused.
