The Faculty of Engineering is one of the largest in Australia, renowned worldwide for the quality and calibre of our teaching, research and graduates. We offer a comprehensive range of undergraduate, graduate, postgraduate and higher degree by research programs in a wide range of engineering disciplines. Our research activities provide a platform for establishing a thriving educational enterprise and our staff are committed to creating a dynamic learning environment. The research activities range from fundamental studies to research with a strong applications orientation. To learn more about the Faculty of Engineering, please visit our website.

The Department aims to provide high quality Civil Engineering education, research and professional services globally for the mutual benefit of the students, the staff, the University, industry, the profession and the wider community. We offer several undergraduate degrees as well as postgraduate coursework degrees via Off-Campus Learning. The Department actively pursues innovative and significant multi-disciplinary research to address the challenges for engineering in the 21st century. POSITION PURPOSE

The Research Fellow (RF) will conduct in-depth research relevant to an ARC discovery project which will tackle problems with Program Network Resources Allocation, in particular developing and extending existing mathematical models relating to efficient resource allocation (ie Network Utility Maximisation models). From this research the RF will be expected to publish high quality journal papers to communicate and disseminate the results. The RF is also expected to assist in the supervision of PhD students and the development of grant applications led by others, as well as to develop their own grant applications for national competitive grant schemes such as ARC DECRA.
